Sustainable Aviation Fuels
time for take-off

Cliò Efthimia Agrapidis

Cliò Efthimia Agrapidis is a physicist and EU Project Consultant at RTDS Group. She holds a PhD in theoretical physics and has a research background spanning institutions in Germany and Poland. Today, she works at the intersection of science, innovation, and European funding, supporting collaborative R&I projects and the translation of research results into pathways for exploitation, industry uptake, and societal impact.